School of Humanities and Languages

Interim Dean: Dr. Don Low

Academic Chair: Linda Thomas

Faculty: Lisa Alvarez, Brenda Borron, Katherine Clark, Janice Horn, Lewis Long, Marjorie Luesebrink, Kurt Meyer, Dr. Peter Morrison, Linda Thomas, Rebecca Welch, Julie Willard

Curriculum

The department offers a range of courses for native speakers and advanced second-language students, including remedial and preparatory courses in reading and writing; college-level composition and reading courses for transfer and associate degree students; and courses in creative writing and literature. The curriculum emphasizes the integration of reading and writing throughout its courses, reflecting the faculty's concern that students not divorce the study of language from the study of cultures nor lose sight of the uses or abuses of writing within a cultural context. The courses offered through the department meet general education and transfer requirements in English, critical thinking, literature, and humanities.

Major

Students majoring in English at the lower-division level concentrate on learning how to interpret literature critically and imaginatively, and how to write prose that is clear, exact, and expressive. Thus the major is appropriate for students who desire or require the ability to be closely attentive to language and to its ramifications. Students anticipating careers in law, education, communications, governmental affairs, and business may find the English major especially helpful. The wide versatility of the English major makes it generally appropriate for students whose career inclinations may be uncertain or indefinite, since the abilities one masters as an English major may be applied to a wide range of contexts and circumstances. The major is also designed for transfer students intending upper division study in literature, criticism, or related fields.

English majors at Irvine Valley College may elect an emphasis either in literature or in writing. In both cases, students should complete both Writing 1 and Writing 2 in fulfillment of language and rationality requirements within the general education package. The faculty recommends that English majors do not select a literature course to meet the humanities requirement for general education, but explore related subjects in the humanities that may be of interest to them.

Associate in Arts Degree in English

Students must complete a minimum of 60 units of credit, including the courses in the major and general education requirements (page 57), with an overall GPA of 2.0 or better. A minimum of 12 units must be completed at Irvine Valley College. See pages 54-55 for further information, including other options for fulfilling the major requirement.

Transfer Preparation

Courses that fulfill major requirements for an associate degree at Irvine Valley College may not be the same as those required for completing the major at a transfer institution offering a baccalaureate degree. Students who plan to transfer to a four-year college or university should (1) refer to the transfer section of this catalog, (2) consult the catalog of their prospective transfer institution (see the IVC Transfer Center for assistance), and (3) schedule an appointment with an IVC counselor to develop a plan of study before beginning their program. It may be helpful to meet with the department faculty at IVC.

Courses

English (Basic Writing)

WR 201: Introduction to College Writing 3 Units

3 hours lecture

Prerequisite: Wr. 301. Corequisite: Wr. 180.

This is an introductory course in the basic conventions and expectations of college essay writing. Students write essays in response to assigned readings from a range of college-level texts. Students learn how to state and support a thesis, develop unified and coherent supporting paragraphs, organize the various parts of an essay, and write clear and effective sentences. The course also introduces students to critical reading, reasoning, and writing. NR

WR 301: Introduction to Writing 3 Units

3 hours lecture

Corequisite: Wr. 280.

Writing 301 is an introductory course in the basic conventions of writing. Students write to observe, to integrate, and to communicate, often in response to assigned readings. Students learn how to explore, evaluate, and state ideas based on consideration of audience and purpose. NR

WR 380: Word Analysis Techniques 2 Units

2 hours lecture

Limitation: Placement in this course is based on learning disability assessment, eligibility, and an individual education plan.

This course is designed to offer specialized prescriptive instruction in spelling and pronunciation to students with a history of difficulties in learning spelling. The course will teach the basic rules of spelling using a variety of learning strategies and modalities. Writing 380 is also listed as ESS 340; credit will be given in either area, not both. R-E-3

English (College Writing)

WR 1: College Writing 1 4 Units

4 hours lecture

Prerequisite: Wr. 201.

Writing 1 is an introductory course in college composition, concentrating on analysis and interpretation. The course focuses on how the student writer might present and develop a particular point of view in a clear, logical, and convincing manner. Students read from a variety of texts offering different ideas, traditions, contexts, and cultural perspectives. Students then write essays in response to issues and concerns derived from a critical reading of those texts. The course features extensive individual and small-group instruction in composition. (CAN ENGL 2) NR

WR 2: College Writing 2: Critical Thinking/Writing 4 Units

4 hours lecture

Prerequisite: Wr. 1.

Writing 2, the second college-level course in academic essay writing, concentrates on critical reasoning, argumentation, evaluation, analysis, and research at an advanced level. Students write and critique argumentative essays in response to assigned readings from a diversity of traditions representing a diversity of intellectual and cultural perspectives. (CAN ENGL 4) NR

English (Writing Conference)

WR 180: Writing Conference .5 Unit

1 hour learning center

This is a credit/no-credit course which may be taken in connection with any course at the college that requires written assignments. Students receive credit for conferring with English instructors. R-E-99

WR 280: Writing Conference .5 Unit

1 hour learning center

Corequisite: Wr. 301.

This is a credit/no-credit course to accompany Writing 301. Students confer with English instructors and make use of the instructional resources of the Humanities Center. They must spend at least 16 hours in the center during the semester to receive credit for the course. R-E-3

English (Creative Writing)

WR 10: Introduction to Creative Writing 3 Units

3 hours lecture

Prerequisite: Wr. 201.

This course introduces students to the fundamental conventions of poetry and fiction, both as readers and as writers. Students write original poems and short fiction and critically evaluate writing in a workshop atmosphere. (CAN ENGL 6) NR

WR 11: Writing Short Fiction 3 Units

3 hours lecture

Prerequisite: Wr. 201.

Writing 11 is designed for student writers of short fictional narratives. Students will study the fundamentals of short fiction, write original fiction, and evaluate the work of other student writers in a workshop setting. Students may take the course a total of four times; however, applied credit in creative writing courses is normally limited to a maximum number of units. UC credit provisions (see UC course list). R-E-3

WR 12: Writing Longer Fiction 3 Units

3 hours lecture

Prerequisite: Wr. 201.

Writing 12 is for student writers of longer fictional narratives. Students study the fundamentals of fiction, write original fiction, and evaluate the work of other student writers in a workshop setting. The course is designed for both beginning and experienced writers. UC credit provisions (see UC course list). R-E-3

WR 13: Writing Poetry*3 hours lecturePrerequisite: Wr. 201.*

Writing 13 is an introductory course in the craft of poetry for both the beginning and the experienced writer. The center of the course is the workshop, a directed forum in which students read, discuss, and critique the poems they have written in response to weekly assignments. Students will study modern and contemporary poems for evidence of poetic techniques put into practice. Thus students will be directed to read closely, to write consciously, and to recognize a well-worked poem, both of their own and others' making. Students may take Writing 13 a total of four times; however, applied credit in creative writing courses is normally limited to a maximum number of units. UC credit provisions (see UC course list). R-E-3

3 UnitsWR 15: Writing TV/Film Script3 hours lecturePrerequisite: Wr. 201.*

In this course, students write for the filmed and taped performance. Students study the fundamental conventions and formats of scriptwriting by learning to view films critically and to read and evaluate successful and unsuccessful scripts. Students may take Writing 15 a total of four times; however, applied credit in creative writing courses is normally limited to a maximum number of units. R-E-3

3 Units

English (Literature)

LIT 1: Introduction to Literature*3 hours lecture*

Literature 1 introduces the major types of literary expression as well as recurrent conventions, concerns, and values central to literature and to the understanding of literary texts and contexts. Students read from and respond extensively to literary materials that reflect diversity in genre, historical period, and cultural expression. In this endeavor students will learn how literature might embody and generate meaning, reflect and create culture and engage the human imagination. NR

3 UnitsLIT 20: Survey of British Literature to 17763 hours lecture*

Literature 20 offers a general introduction to and survey of the history of literature written in the British Isles from the pre-Norman period to the American Revolution, with an emphasis on major (influential or otherwise significant) texts and authors; intellectual and historical contexts; development of literary traditions, conventions, and genres; and the emergence of a "national" literature. (CAN ENGL 8; Lit. 20+21: CAN LIT SEQ B) NR

3 UnitsLIT 21: British Literature: Blake to the Present3 hours lecture*

Literature 21 studies the history of British literature commencing with the rise of English Romanticism and ending with consideration of late modern and contemporary British authors and texts. Issues of central concern include the rise of Romanticism, its variants and consequences; Victorian optimism and pessimism; the flowering of the novel; the Celtic renaissance; neo-gothicism; the Modernist rebellion, its storm troopers and their critics; and British literary culture since the Second World War. Authors include Blake, Wordsworth, Coleridge, Keats, Shelley, Byron, the Brontës, Austen, Tennyson, Dickens, Carlyle, Arnold, Browning, George Eliot, Hardy, Wilde, Conrad, Yeats, Pound, T.S. Eliot, Woolfe, Lawrence, Shaw, Joyce, Auden, Beckett, and selected contemporaries. (CAN ENGL 10; Lit. 20+21: CAN LIT SEQ B) NR

3 UnitsLIT 22: American Literature to Twain3 hours lecture*

Literature 22 surveys American literature from the exploration narratives and ancient oral traditions through the captivity narratives and sermons of the colonial period and the political treatises and self-examination of the enlightenment and federalist period, culminating in the Romanticism of the mid-nineteenth century expressions of writers through Whitman. Readings include works by major authors and noncanonical materials, many of which will initially seem nonliterary. Particularly designed for transfer students, this course examines the genesis of American literary traditions and what, in the views of diverse observers, it meant to be an American. (CAN ENGL 14; Lit. 22+23: CAN LIT SEQ C) NR

3 UnitsLIT 23: American Literature: Twain to the Present3 hours lecture*

Literature 23 surveys the rich cultural diversity of American literature from 1865 through the present. Students will explore the distinctively American treatment of such genres as domestic fiction, westerns, slave tales, and oral and folk narratives as well as the more conventional forms of drama, poetry, autobiography and fiction that comprise the "high-art" of realism, naturalism, modernism, the Harlem Renaissance, regionalism, and post-modernism. Students will also examine the cultural forces at work in the reconstruction of the American canon and the variety of critical approaches to literature of this period. (CAN ENGL 16; Lit. 22+23: CAN LIT SEQ C) NR

3 UnitsLIT 24: Contemporary Literature3 hours lecture*

Literature 24 examines the work of selected contemporary writers from various traditions, media, and cultures. Emphasis is on contemporary writers from the sixties through the nineties in the novel, short story, and poetry. Students will study these writings from a recent historical perspective to determine major themes and concerns of contemporary literature. NR

3 UnitsLIT 30: Introduction to the Novel3 hours lecture*

Literature 30 introduces the novel, exploring its history, variations, flexibility and limitations as a literary genre. Students read from a variety of major novels—classic to modern—in order to study the diversity of novelistic form and content and to discuss the purposes for which the novel has proven especially popular or effective. NR

3 UnitsLIT 31: Introduction to Short Fiction3 hours lecture*

This course will trace and identify the development of various forms of short fiction. It includes both historical and stylistic analysis of brief fictional forms created by authors, ancient and modern, from a variety of cultures. NR

3 UnitsLIT 32: Introduction to Poetry3 hours lecture*

Literature 32 provides an introduction to the study of lyric poetry in the form of a historical survey of world poetry from antiquity to the present. Students consider poetic conventions and traditions in historical and cultural context and become familiar with the terms and concepts fundamental to the study of poetry, as drawn from prosody, rhetoric, aesthetics, and criticism. In addition, the class introduces students to essential concerns in the history of poetics, including issues such as the value of poetry, the nature and status of the poem, the question of taste, the role of tradition, the relationship of criticism to poetry, theories of craft and inspiration, and the politics of style and judgment. NR

3 UnitsLIT 33: Introduction to Drama3 hours lecture*

This course will introduce students to some of the major plays of Western culture. Attention will be paid to historical breadth. Attempts will be made to see stagings or film versions of some of the plays. (CAN ENGL 22) NR

3 Units

LIT 40: Introduction to the Hebrew Bible (Old Testament) 3 Units
3 hours lecture
This course offers a general introduction to the Hebrew Bible (Old Testament), with particular focus on historical, textual, cultural, and literary issues. Students will consider the historical development of narrative, lyric, dramatic, and legal texts that eventually came to constitute the Hebrew Bible; explore questions of authorship and textual evolution; and study the processes and themes by which these writings exerted a formative influence on the development of Western literature. NR

LIT 41: Introduction to the New Testament 3 Units
3 hours lecture
Literature 41 offers a non-doctrinal, literary and historical introduction to the New Testament and related texts. Of central interest in the course will be consideration of the various cultural, philosophical, and literary contexts out of which the Christian Bible emerged. Students will engage in such topics as the representation of Jesus; the influence of Paul; the nature and role of the early Christian churches; the variety of interpretive approaches to the text; the composition and formation of a canon; the relationship of Jewish eschatological and gnostic literature; and the influence of central New Testament themes, characters, and motifs on subsequent literature. NR

LIT 42: The Myths of the Ancient World 3 Units
3 hours lecture
This course will examine and analyze texts central to the Mediterranean and medieval European myth traditions. The focus of the course will be on texts that have shaped the structures, themes, and imagery of later European literature. NR

LIT 43: Introduction to Shakespeare 3 Units
3 hours lecture
Literature 43 provides an introduction to the work of William Shakespeare. The course emphasizes Shakespeare's variety and development as a dramatic artist by means of close study of early and late plays selected from the histories, comedies, tragedies, satires, and romances. Consideration is given to the social, cultural, and political milieu from which the plays emerged, as well as to the role, function, and performance of dramatic literature within Elizabethan and Jacobean England. NR

LIT 45: Women in Literature 3 Units
3 hours lecture
Literature 45 examines the works of selected women poets, novelists, short story writers, essayists, and dramatists from various historical periods and cultures. Emphasis is on the participation of women in traditional and nontraditional literary activity, the major thematic concerns in women's writing, and the distinctive forms and language that may apply in works by women. NR

LIT 46: Intercultural Literature 3 Units
3 hours lecture
This course examines the literature of people of an emergent culture (defined by gender, ethnicity, race, culture, orientation, or ideology) whose identity and concerns are traditionally ignored or stereotyped by the larger, dominant culture in which it exists. Special emphasis will be placed on the following (1) the relation between this literature and the traditional literary and critical canon by which it is ignored or marginalized; (2) the way the very existence of such literature challenges the validity of a traditional canon; (3) the way this literature works to define the cultural and personal identity of members of the emergent culture; and (4) the ways this literature works to revise the perception of this culture within the dominant culture. NR

LIT 47: Fable and Folktale 3 Units
3 hours lecture
This course examines the body of writings which comprise written versions of the parables, fables, and folktales of ancient and traditional cultures. In order to establish interrelations of the tales, students will identify and analyze central concerns, themes and motifs. Distinctions will be made between mythic literature and folk literature as students trace the influence of fable, folktale and myth on the development of literary structures and motifs. NR

LIT 107: Children's Literature 3 Units
3 hours lecture
Literature 107 is a course surveying types of children's literature as they are encountered by children developmentally. Emphasis will be placed upon criteria for evaluating children's literature as distinct from adult literature and upon mechanisms for determining the use of literature in the psychological, cognitive, behavioral, social, and psychological advancement of children. This course is particularly designed for current or prospective teachers, parents, and English or liberal arts majors. NR

LIT 110: Popular Literature 3 Units
3 hours lecture
Literature 110 is a lower-division course in which students study a genre or theme within the field of popular literature. Topics proposed, developed, and approved by the Department of English encourage the study of popular literature through a provocative inquiry. Emphasis is given to the traditional roots of the selected genre of popular literature. R-E-3

English (College Reading)

RD 171: Reading: Rate and Efficiency 3 Units
3 hours lecture
This course is designed to improve reading comprehension and efficiency and to expand college-level vocabulary. Emphasis is on reading flexibility, with attention directed to rapid reading, skimming, scanning, and reading critically. NR

RD 174: Critical Reading 3 Units
3 hours lecture
Prerequisite: Wr. 1.
Reading 174 analyzes the relationship between critical reading and critical thinking. The course emphasizes the development and application of reading skills in the interpretation, analysis, criticism and advocacy of ideas encountered in academic, professional and personal environments. NR

RD 178: Literacy Training for Volunteers: Tutoring Children 3 Units
